

1. Look at the word.
2. Identify prefixes and suffixes.
3. Note the vowel sounds in the rest of the word and divide the word into syllables.
5. Say the parts of the word together.
6. Say the parts together again fast.
7. Ask, "Is this a word I know? Does it make sense in the sentence?"
  - If it doesn't make sense try pronouncing it a different way. For example, some consonants and vowels can be pronounced differently (e.g., "c" can have the sound of /s/ or /k/, "ea" can have the sound of /e/ or /ē/).
  - Look the word up in the dictionary, if necessary.
8. When the word is identified, read the sentence again with the word.
9. Good job! Keep reading.

How to Read an Unfamiliar Word

How to Read an Unfamiliar Word

1. Look at the word.
2. Identify prefixes and suffixes.
3. Note the vowel sounds in the rest of the word and divide the word into syllables.
5. Say the parts of the word together.
6. Say the parts together again fast.
7. Ask, "Is this a word I know? Does it make sense in the sentence?"
  - If it doesn't make sense try pronouncing it a different way. For example, some consonants and vowels can be pronounced differently (e.g., "c" can have the sound of /s/ or /k/, "ea" can have the sound of /e/ or /ē/).
  - Look the word up in the dictionary, if necessary.
8. When the word is identified, read the sentence again with the word.
9. Good job! Keep reading.